Bouncely allows users to earn cash back while shopping online.

San Diego, Jun 3, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - Shopping isn't what it used to be. The days of driving to the mall and roaming from store to store will soon be a thing of the past, but getting paid while you shop online seems like a fair exchange for shoppers to adjust to this "new normal".

Bouncely's new platform allows users to earn cashback while shopping online. Customers that sign up automatically receive cashback with every single purchase they make.

Bouncely's portal offers a wide variety of retailers with a little something for everyone, from name brands to niche products and services.

Their partners include some of the biggest names including clothing manufacturers Champion, Hanes, and The Men's Wearhouse. There are youth-oriented lines like surf and skate lifestyle brands O'Neil, RVCA, and Billabong as well.

Bouncely's site also features luggage retailer Samsonite, big-box store Sam's Club, and Microsoft for the tech-savvy.

For the fashionistas Bouncely offers savings from mall staples like Macy's and Nordstrom's.

There’s even something for the kids with Lego and GamesStop for toys and their video game needs.

Bouncely’s process is easy and simple. After signing up, users select from their favorite stores and retailers and shop for the items they want. Once that’s done, customers get a percentage back every time they shop online. The percentage saved varies for each specific retailer and the value changes from month to month.

Their retailers and the cashback percentages will be continuously updated to reach a wider customer base. Updates can be received when after sign up from Bouncely’s mailing list and also direct from their online portal or app.

Bouncely receives a commission from their partners whenever a purchased is made. Retailers typically complete their portion of the purchase transaction within 60-90 days. Once that is complete, the cashback is credited to your account and every three months customers will receive their payout via Paypal or check.

Bouncely’s new portal was developed by San Diego-based marketing firm NonStop Marketing. Any new companies or start-ups looking to build their brand or a new site can contact them at nonstopmarketing.co.

Consumers will always have to adjust as shopping trends change but getting extra money back in their pockets is an excellent tradeoff in these new economic times of social distancing and decreased in-person shopping.

This exciting new shopping experience is available at GoBouncely.com or the Bouncely app. First-time customers can sign up now and receive $5 automatically to their account.
