HYPs: are you really still sitting on your ski poles?

Whistler, British Columbia Dec 22, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Artem Bylinskii started the sole proprietorship at the tail end of last year's ski season. With the start of this one comes the ski lift hack you didn't know you needed! Now in the final week of its Kickstarter campaign, he needs your support to free up skiers' hands and get them HYP'd, all while promoting lift bar safety. HYPs Hold Your Poles, So You Don't Have To!

All skiers agree - ski poles are annoying on the chairlift. They're cold and uncomfortable to sit on, or occupy your hands that should be used for snacking and photos. Channeling this frustration, Artem Bylinskii created a small yet brilliant accessory to Hold Your Poles (So You Don't Have To). HYPs:

- Mount instantly on any ski pole
- Effortlessly clip to/from the chairlift bar
- Free up both hands for snacking, gesticulating, and phone usage
- Are compact, durable, safe, and unobtrusive

- Costs less than lunch on the mountain

Testimonials

And from reactions within the mountain community, HYPs are hitting a nerve.

- “These are so cool, I will have to take up skiing just to use them!” — A Snowboarder
- “At first I thought, why bother... now I can't wait to hang my poles!” — A Skeptic Skier
- “I saw Artem and his friends chill AF on a ski lift with their SKI POLES FLOATING. I was like—WTF?! Genius!” — An East-Coaster

Development

The R&D journey was hands-on and community-driven. Producing them on a 3D printer, he gifted them to fellow skiers on the lifts, collecting real feedback, and refining every curve and angle. The result is the clever creation you didn’t know you needed, made by a skier, for skiers. The concept is simple. The problem is universal. Sometimes all it takes is asking, “Why hasn’t anyone solved this yet?”. That’s why HYPs are shaping up as one of this ski season’s most ingenious accessories.

Safety Revolution

And now HYPs are having an unintended, but invaluable benefit - they promote restraining bar safety! Whereas the North American ski culture has been that “restraining bars are for dweebs, it’s shifting towards “let’s get this bar down to get these poles out of our hands. The RevoluSki is here.
