Du Shuo of Hainan Airlines believes that Chinese aviation industry is flourishing, and the fleet construction of Hainan Airlines is also taking advantage of the rapid development of the environment. It is known that Hainan Airlines will introduce nearly 100 new aircraft this year, so the demand for pilots will increase with each passing day.

Virgin Australia's Mr. Cai believes that since the tourism industry has been growing in various countries, aircraft has become an important role of transportation, so the demand for pilots will be growing, and the shortage of pilots will become increasingly apparent global problems.
