The Cannabis Market is readying itself for another "Golden Egg"

Montreal, Dec 23, 2018 (Issuewire.com) - With the year quickly coming to an end, many investors are tempting to peer into the future to search for "their next unicorn."

It was a turbulent 2018 with the market seeing more dips and dives than a roller-coaster ride at a Six Flags amusement park; with the Dow recently hitting its lowest point since the 2008 market crash.

Each had their favourite sector, with the cannabis industry coming out on top as the big winner, winner, chicken dinner! Let it be known, fortunes were made and lost, with overnight millionaires hailing from the east and all the way to the west.

Top contenders Canopy Growth Corporation saw a $4 billion USD investment from beverage and alcohol giant, Constellation Brands (NYSE: STZ and STZ.B); while the Cronos Group Inc. saw $1.8 billion USD from Altria Group the maker of Marlboro cigarettes.

With all the heavy-handed investments and over saturation of the cannabis market; one would think that we've reached the acme with the bubble about to pop.

Growpacker Inc.

Let's talk about a newcomer on the scene for a moment; a visionary, a company so prepared for the inevitable, that key players and major brands have aligned themselves with them.

With days into the passing of the US Farm Bill for $867 billion USD, hemp and CBD companies are scrambling to get to the top of their game.

Many believe that and with no hint as to when; but in the foreseeable near future, the golden goose will hatch yet another egg.

Deepening our insight into that; we strongly believe that a momentous second coming of the Cannabis God is right around the corner.

Growpacker Inc., through its interest in GP Holdings LLC, is a cannabis co-packing facility out of Desert Hot Springs, California.

Led by CEO Stephen Boyd and with a management team and advisory board so experienced and influential; one can easily say that they will be a powerhouse in the New Year.

Currently, a private company incorporated in the state of California, their anticipation of going public through RTO on the CSE, looks to be quite viable by Q1 of next year.

Blending the traditional co-packing norm with "all things" cannabis, Growpacker will be able to accommodate and manufacture virtually any order large or small relating to products infused with THC and CBD extracts.

- Edibles, beverages, cookies, brownies, dealcoholized drinks, kombuchas, lotions, creams, skincare products and cosmetics to name a few.

With a fully functional commercial kitchen, bottling line, distribution and transportation division; they're extremely versatile in every way.

Operating to FDA standards Growpacker will have the ability to manufacture for the regulated cannabis market (dispensaries) and the open market (grocery stores etc.)

Key Players

Through a strategic partnership with InterContinental Beverage Capital (IBC) (www.inbevcapital.com) a New York-based advisory firm and merchant bank; with it's founding members former executives of MillerCoors, Cadbury Schweppes, Coca-Cola, Diageo and RedBull, it's quite clear of Growpacker's intentions.

American Premium Water Corporation (www.lalpinainc.com) the company behind the LALPINA CBD brand recently announced a Letter of Intent with the California based company.

In that agreement, Growpacker is slated to provide them with packaging and distribution services as well as custom-made products that use their proprietary THC and CBD formulations.

Wait, we haven't finished yet. Keith Villa, the original founding member of Blue Moon Brewery, America's #1 craft beer with annual revenue exceeding $250M and brand value of over $1B and now owned and operated by MillerCoors, is a special advisor and shareholder to the company.

Keith is also the founder of Ceria Beverages, a THC infused craft beer company. (www.ceriabrewing.com)

Jon Cooper founding member of Ebbu Inc. (www.ebbu.com) a U.S hemp research company recently acquired by Canopy Growth Corporation for $429M USD is also a special advisor and shareholder.

In our opinion, we do believe that the cannabis market is reshaping, shifting and moulding itself into a long-term play; with some short profitable plays, in the beginning, stages of this "new chapter."

We're keeping an eye on Growpacker they're a true player with an extremely stable base with key figures at the helm.

Growpacker is one of Bullstocks ONE TO WATCH.

About Growpacker

Growpacker is a fully-licensed cannabis co-packing and bottling company that operates to FDA standards in California, now the world's fifth largest economy and America's largest consumer market. Taking a bifurcated approach on the industry, Growpacker will have the ability to manufacture products for both the regulated cannabis market (dispensaries) as well as the open market for products that are CBD only (grocery, convenience store, etc). They have licensed several patented THC & CBD infusion technologies, allowing them to design and manufacture the most premium cannabis-infused products on the market, including both water and oil-based products.

About Bullstocks.ca

Bullstocks.ca is a digital media company that provides content and press release dissemination via their social media platforms, newswire and advertisement space through their website and partner sites.

Ads and press releases featuring stock information featured on their site are distributed to a large audience of investors that are interested in mining, technology and cannabis stocks.

Corporate Communications

Contact: John Kanakis

VP of Business Development

Tel. 1-(833)-476-9722

Email: john@growpacker.com

www.growpacker.com

Bullstocks.ca a Just3 company

www.bullstocks.ca / www.just3.ca

Media Contact

Bullstocks.ca

info@bullstocks.ca

514-434-2640

Source : Bullstocks.ca

See on IssueWire : https://www.issuewire.com/the-cannabis-market-is-readying-itself-for-another-golden-egg-1620662303824623