

The Ingenious Singer Sosa Delivers the Depth of his Creativity through his Tracks

Sosa is not just a rapper and his latest tracks show his potentiality as a musician. His unique blend of rap is expressed best through this creation on Spotify.

Los Angeles, Dec 31, 1969 (Issuewire.com) - Showing his true potential as a musician, Sosa finally launched two of his tracks that grant justice to his musical abilities. He doesn't create his compositions as a mere entertainment purpose, but his music defines the kind of person he is. All

We Do’ and They Hate Me’ brings out the best of him and stands as a testament to his enhancement as a musician. Sosa brings forth a style that can be seen in no other artists. He isn’t afraid of speaking his mind and his latest tracks ‘All We Do’ and ‘They Hate Me’ are an example of it. He owns his own label known as STREETCAT RECORDZ. Through all the obstacles he faced, his love for music never faded.

‘All We Do’ speaks of the heartbreaks and mistakes people go through and commit in their life. Taken from his life the intensity of the song will hook any listener to it. Sosa fuses familiar tunes with the traditional elements of hip-hop keeping the integrity of the genre intact. The storyline stands out the most as it is quite relatable. On the other hand ‘They Hate Me’ is about the neglect and hatred he had to go through in his life. Considering the intensity of both the tracks the rap vocals and hypnotic beats suits the ambience of the songs perfectly. He truly is an inspiration to the next generation of hip-hop artist.
