

Staircase Trends and Interior Design Styles

Glass staircases are on trend going into 2019, with sleek, minimal designs creating light and airy internal spaces. Balustrade Components UK manufactures a range of glass fixings to create beautiful glass staircase designs.

interiors are set to get cozier with warm wood tones, rich tones, and innovative design. The combination of warm natural wood tones and glass has been a staple design for staircase trends with a feeling of warmth yet maintaining a sleek, clear vista.

In 2019 it is predicted staircases are set to be all about making the most of the space and the trend for minimal design and sleek glass balustrades look set to continue. Making the most of the space could just be perceived as purely aesthetic, ensuring the right look and feel is achieved using the right materials, which is always a sensible and obvious approach.

The key material for this year will be glass due to its striking aesthetics and multifunctional use. It helps to create the illusion of space and transparency, giving interior spaces lots more natural light.

The popularity of multi-use staircases with integrated bookcases and incorporated storage will increase, as homeowners look to maximize interior spaces.

Other fashionable uses of staircase space include the incorporation of wine cellars underneath the stairs and well crafted, innovative and beautifully installed storage spaces.

Balustrade Components UK manufactures a range of glass fixing solutions to satisfy the most creative of staircase designs. They are all made in their manufacturing facilities based in Cannock, Staffordshire, to the highest standards to provide customers with complete peace of mind.

Paul Startin, Managing Director, comments, "We have a great team here with a genuine desire to help our customers. We receive a lot of inquiries, some straight forward, some more complex, either way, we are happy to provide guidance and find a solution for the most intriguing and innovative design ideas."

The experienced team at Balustrade Components works closely with architects, specifiers, contractors, developers, and other industry professionals. They provide design inspiration and guidelines early on in projects, right through every step of the specification process.

The company sources the finest 304 and 316 stainless steel as it provides the greatest levels of corrosion resistance, fire and heat resistance, strength-to-weight ratio advantage, hygienic properties, impact resistance, and its clinical aesthetic appearance.

These factors mean stainless steel lends itself as a suitable material for high-quality fixings for glass staircases and ensures quality stems through the entire specification process, from concept to completion, and reduces any potential problems faced by the installer on-site, and for the end result for the client.
