This father moved to Florida, but still was very active in his daughter's life and they remained very close. Dad immediately rushed back to Chicago to be by his daughter's side when he heard her mother died.

After his arrival, the dad learned his daughter was being shuttled between different family members of the deceased mother. His daughter already had her own room in his Florida home and she could immediately begin attending an excellent school if only he could reunite with her. His plans came to an abrupt halt when the mother's family refused to let him even see his daughter.

This father turned to Dads' Rights Attorney Jeffery M. Leving for help. Jeffery Leving put together his legal team, led by Arthur Kallow and Andrew Benson. They quickly designed a strategy to reunite this grieving little girl with her dad. Leving argued the dad should have sole custody of his daughter and allow her to go to Florida with him, and Leving won.

When the father arrived to locate his daughter at the maternal aunt's house, the mother's family called the police to arrest him. When the police arrived, he showed them the Court Order Leving obtained. The police did not arrest him and helped reunite this dad with his daughter.

This little girl is now living with her dad, where she can grieve the loss of her mother with his support.
