Los Angeles, Feb 11, 2019 (Issuewire.com) - Polk Properties is once again honored to present the public a recently published article on Forbes.com. The topic is compelling as its the beginning of the year. Please enjoy. Look for other article releases.

Hard money lenders are professional lenders who seek out borrowers. They typically place more importance on the collateral or equity in the property than your credit. Over the years, it has transformed into a more common option — but unlike traditional lenders, hard money loans may have high-risk characteristics such as low credit scores and marginal credit. And with a higher risk loan
