

Richflo Hutch is Amalgamating the Best Variations of Lyrics and Sound in the Verses of His Songs

Artist Richflo Hutch is recreating the fragments of rap with contemporary style of groovy chemistry between sound and lyrics in his songs 'Alright' and 'Blood Line'.

Antelope, Feb 13, 2019 (Issuewire.com) - Hip-hop artist Richflo Hutch is recapturing the essence of classical rap and creating what can be only attributed as a resurrection of the genre by all means. A Southern California guy, he has been influenced by music's collective impact since a very tender age. His passion and unadulterated zest for his work have led to the creation of the tracks ‘Alright’ and ‘Blood Line’ that dropped with boisterous versatility and potential. His songs are all about the real existential differences of the individual preferences of his own life. He is a collaborator of the best flavors of hip-hop that come together in making his musical style one of a kind.

Richflo Hutch started out as just another neighborhood kid trying his hand at hip-hop; but gradually, as his sound and depth of the lateral music scene became more and more conspicuous, his flairs grew as a musician. From building his own studio to recording hordes of hits, Richflo Hutch now runs a steady fan base which is only expanding by the day. Music takes its best forms from both the black and white side of one’s life saga. Richflo Hutch too has been drawing stories through his undulating voice, smart lyrics and a groovy mix of contemporary sound streams.

Although ‘Alright’ and ‘Blood Line’ have been making quite the stir among audiences, Richflo Hutch is already two albums and numerous singles old. With time and age, he definitely is becoming a refined version of the musician that he wants to become. Follow him on Soundcloud, Twitter and Instagram to be a part of the bigger picture of music and hip-hop’s evolution as a world changer.
