

SuperATV Opens After School Study Program

Madison, Feb 13, 2019 (IssueWire.com) - SuperATV, the leader in high-quality aftermarket parts and accessories for the ATV and UTV industry, launched its after school Young Scholars program for school-aged children of employees on Monday, January 7, 2019.

SuperATV's program is designed to give children a safe and secure environment to work on schoolwork nearer to their parents. This free service for SuperATV employees eliminates the need for employees to look for outside costly childcare services or leave their children home unattended.

SuperATV is a Madison-grown company that believes the path to a better business lies in the quality of life of its employees and the quality of the community they live in. With over 200 employees, SuperATV is dedicated to maintaining an inclusive and comfortable workplace culture. With its Young Scholars program, SuperATV is planting a seed in our community for a better tomorrow.

The Young Scholars program is located within the SuperATV facility and allows children to be dropped off directly at the building. Students study in a large, clean conference room under the supervision of tutor Brianna Torrance, a senior at Madison Consolidated High School.

The program itself promotes learning and development along with building social and academic skills while boosting self-esteem. The opportunity to complete schoolwork immediately following school allows families to spend more meaningful time together in the evenings.
