

Work exchange platform Work For Lodgings launched

Announcing the launch of Work For Lodgings, a new platform that caters for the exchange of work for accommodation.

Lourdes, Feb 6, 2019 (IssueWire.com) - Work For Lodgings is a new work exchange platform connecting hosts from all over the world with guest-workers who are happy to work in exchange for food and accommodation. Work For Lodgings is all about direct exchange, gaining new experiences, making new friends and enabling alternative ways of living.

“I created Work For Lodgings with the idea of helping students to pay for accommodation through work effort, enabling them to live near universities in expensive cities, and now the platform has been expanded to facilitate all types of hosts and guest-workers,” said John Slattery, founder of Work For Lodgings. “Imagine you have a spare room and you want to find skilled people to come live-in and work for you, skilled people you can rely on as they need accommodation, food, and good references.”

Work for Lodgings provides a professional work-exchange service connecting people around the world, creating a community of hosts and guest-workers. While work-exchange is very popular with students in full-time education, gap-year youths, and migrant workers such as campsite staff, vineyard workers, and humanitarian helpers, it’s also used by many world travelers and full-time nomads, including families.

About Work For Lodgings

Work For Lodgings is here to promote fair exchange between guest-workers and host families, individuals or organizations that are looking for help around the world.

From elderly care or housework to help on the farm or on a boat, volunteer guest-workers are an indispensable aid and provide a support network for many people. For many hosts, having volunteers ready to lend a hand is pivotal to them being able to function or survive.
