

Children's Book Teaches Kids How To Cope With Their Mother's Breast Cancer Diagnosis

Breast Cancer survivor writes book to encourage children to be hopeful and helpful

District of Columbia, Mar 7, 2019 (IssueWire.com) - Breast Cancer survivor uses Breast cancer diagnosis to create a book to help children and parents deal with the difficult and scary journey of Breast Cancer.

Written by Marquita Goodluck, "BK's Mommy Has Breast Cancer" was created to help a 7-year -old boy understand and deal with his mother's Breast Cancer diagnosis. With great understanding and planning, he learns that there are many small ways he can help his mother while she is on her Breast Cancer Journey. He realizes that he can be a friend, entertainer, work out buddy, and caregiver.

Marquita Goodluck, a Breast Cancer warrior, wrote this book to help parents and children deal with the difficult and scary journey of Breast Cancer. Written entirely in the image of her family with factual events, "BK's Mommy Has Breast Cancer" is the perfect positive, authentic, and upbeat book to help any family facing Cancer. With its rhyming text and positive illustrations, "BK's Mommy Has Breast Cancer" is the perfect book to encourage children to be hopeful and helpful as their loved one fights one of the hardest battles of their life.

"My biggest fear wasn't that I would die from this horrible disease, my biggest fear was telling my children that I had it!"

" I wrote this book to teach parents and children that although this journey will be difficult and you may feel helpless, you can make an impact by being creative, passionate, caring and strategic! If we prepare them and guide them, children are more than capable of dealing with tough issues such as Breast Cancer. We just have to educate them and show them how!"

Marquita Goodluck is available for media interviews and can be reached by email at marquitawriteschildrenbooks@gmail.com. 'BK's Mommy Has Breast Cancer' is available in print and at online retailers. Readers can get their copy from Amazon, Booksamillion.com, and Barnesandnoble.com. Book distribution is available through Ingram Spark. ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Marquita Goodluck, is a mother of three who was diagnosed with Breast Cancer. While struggling to fight through Chemotherapy, she was inspired to write a children's book reflecting the actual experience of a Breast Cancer Patient. The idea and inspiration of "BK's Mommy Has Breast Cancer" is based on factual interactions with her children, mainly her 7-year-old son, BK. She documented every effort that BK made to help her feel better. She learned through her children, that it's hope and the little joys of life that can feed the soul of a Breast Cancer patient.
