

Pop and Dance is Being Characterized by the Best Hybrid Global Flavors in Therése Neaimé's Songs

Pop artist Therése Neaimé is creating undulating waves of traditional and contemporary mixes into some of the most compelling and bouncy dance numbers of our times.

Staffanstorp, Mar 6, 2019 (IssueWire.com) - The concentric lines of music have a tendency to amalgamate tonal qualities of various genres into beautiful fallouts. Many artists in today's world of overlapping musical celebrations are trying their hands at captivating experimentations that are overwhelming the audience with their sound arrangements and distinct thematic insertions. Swedish-

Lebanese pop artist Therése Neaimé is putting together her roots of distant past into a glorification of a musical and lyrical extravaganza. Her songs 'All I Think About is You' and 'Heartbeat' from her new Extended Play 'A Kiss from the Desert' are a tribute to her life experiences and the emotional stances that made her into the person she is today.

The accomplishment of an artist lies in her ability to turn the known territories of psychological instincts into art. Therése Neaimé has created a meaningful web of her own limitless emotional boundaries into songs that scream an innate structural enrapture of sound and lyrics. Her songs portray the versatility of the Arabic pedagogic timbre along with the outspokenness of lateral Scandinavian symphonies. All of these regional palates come together in a blasphemy of dance grooves, making Therése Neaimé's sound one of a kind.

The EP is a celebration of her own sagas of growing in and out of the emotional enclaves of her life. Some of her other songs from the EP including 'Lovers Lullaby' and 'Best of Me' each reproduces as a memoir of the intricacies of her milestone moments. The rhythmic annotations and the contemporary feel of the songs with her hefty, liberating voice adorning the thematic patterns of each song finds a brisk path into the audience hearts. Follow her music stream on Spotify to enliven life's spirits with renewed vigor.
