Get to know Internist Dr. Kevin S. Combs, who serves the population of Lebanon, Virginia.

New York City, Apr 17, 2019 (Issuewire.com) - Board certified internist Dr Combs currently practices with Carilion Clinic Family Medicine, where he holds expertise in internal medicine and emergency medicine. Carilion Clinic is a not-for-profit health care organization. Through their comprehensive network of hospitals, primary and specialty physician practices and other complementary services, they work together to provide quality care close to home for nearly 1 million Virginians. With an enduring commitment to the health of their region, they also seek to advance care through medical education and research, help their community stay healthy and inspire their region to grow stronger.

Dr Combs graduated with his Doctor of Osteopist Medicine Degree from the University of Pikeville-Kentucky College of Osteopathic Medicine in 2006, giving him over a decade of experience in his field. He then completed his internship and residency from the Norton Community Hospital. He is certified in internal medicine by the American Osteopathic Board. AOA board certification is an important quality marker for patients, employers, insurers and regulators. They engage in continuous professional development that can lead to improved patient outcomes and experiences.

To stay up to date in his field, he remains a professional member of the American Medical Association, American Osteopathic Association, and the American College of Physicians. Osteopathic physicians, or DOs, believe there's more to good health than the absence of pain or disease. Their whole-person approach to medicine focuses on prevention, helping promote the body's natural tendency toward health and self-healing.
