

Former CNN reporter Keturah King nabs her an apron on the 10th season of MasterChef

Keturah King takes her talents from the red carpet to the kitchen under the pressure of Gordon Ramsey on Fox

California, May 30, 2019 (Issuewire.com) - Keturah King made her cooking debut on national television last night on MasterChef season 10 displaying yet another talent. She is known for her on-air talent and producing, but she has never professionally pursued cooking. Keturah is a big personality, so the only way to test her skills was to face off with Gordon Ramsey along with his esteemed judges to get real feedback. Now, the show is back with another season to find the best cook through a series of exciting and grueling challenges, with some of the culinary industry's biggest names forming the judges' panel. Acclaimed chef and one of the most popular judges on the show, Gordon Ramsay, has reportedly said that the competition will be on "a different level" now, and we cannot wait!

Keturah King is a British-Nigerian journalist that has taken written talent to the world of production to create visual stories. Keturah likes to find beauty in the unexpected and bring that to the forefront to change the narrative. She is currently the executive producer for Passport Heavy, a series that highlights the hidden gems that make a city great. Her production debut started at Arise News' where she produced and hosted her own weekly entertainment program "Showbiz Weekly." Her groundbreaking work producing the Nigeria Elections 2015 output for Arise News caught the attention of CNN who quickly enlisted her as the face and voice of CNN Africa for CNN International. As the host of CNN African Voices, Keturah's persona and the gift of storytelling helped the network's evolution revamping the program to a fun and engaging show with trendsetting African culture at the epicenter.

Media Contact

The Coffman Agency

info@thecoffmanagency.com

213-296-3894

Source : Keturah King

See on IssueWire : <https://www.issuewire.com/former-cnn-reporter-keturah-king-nabs-her-an-apron-on-the-10th-season-of-masterchef-1634957809605824>