

Author Barbara Frances Promotes Her Southern Gothic Fiction Novel – Shadow’s Way

Austin, Jun 9, 2019 (IssueWire.com) - Author Barbara Frances Promotes Her Southern Gothic Fiction Novel – Shadow's Way

Author Barbara Frances is pleased to announce the promotion of her Southern gothic fiction novel, Shadow's Way.

Prepare to be spellbound. Barbara Frances' long-awaited third novel, "Shadow's Way," takes you to the coastal, deep South, where the past and the present mingle in a gothic tale of insanity, murder, and sexual intrigue. You'll meet the beautiful Elaine Chauvier, former actress and proprietor of Shadow's Way, her family's antebellum home; the esteemed Archbishop Andre Figurant and his fallen identical twin, Bastien; newly arrived Ophelia and Rudy, here to explore their Chauvier roots and their ties to Shadow's Way; and the mysterious Madame Claudine. Under a veneer of piety and graciousness, i.e., the questions: What is good? What is evil? What is a reality?

Shadow's Way is available for purchase in print and ebook formats.

Book Details:

Shadow's Way

By Barbara Frances

Publisher: Positive Imaging

Published: July 2018

ISBN: 978-1944071417 (pb)

ISBN: 978-1944071677 (hc)

ASIN: B07FZ895H1

Pages: 290

Genre: Southern Gothic Fiction

About the Author:

Barbara Frances has plenty of stories and a life spent acquiring them. Growing up Catholic on a small Texas farm, her childhood ambition was to become a nun. In ninth grade, she entered a boarding school in Our Lady of the Lake Convent as an aspirant, the first of several steps before taking vows. On graduation, however, she passed up the nun's habit for a college degree in English and Theatre Arts. Her professors were aghast when she declined a PhD program in order to become a stewardess, but Barbara never looked back. "In the Sixties, a stewardess was a glamorous occupation." Her career highlights include dating a very gentlemanly Chuck Berry and "opening the bar" for a planeload of underage privates on their way to Vietnam. Marriage, children, school teaching and divorce distracted her from storytelling, but one summer she and a friend coauthored a screenplay. "I never had such fun! I come from a family of storytellers. Relatives would come over and after dinner, everyone would tell tales. Sometimes they were even true." The next summer Barbara wrote a screenplay solo. Contest recognition, an agent and three optioned scripts followed but, weary of fickle producers and endless rewrites, she turned to novels. Shadow's Way is her third book. Her first, Lottie's Adventure, is aimed at young readers. Her second, Like I Used To Dance, is a family saga set in 1950's rural Texas. Barbara's fans can be thankful she passed up convent life for one of stories and storytelling. She and her husband Bill live in Austin, Texas.

Contact Information:

Website: <http://shadowsway.com>

Promo Link: <http://bookbuzz.net/blog/gothic-fiction-shadows-way/>

Purchase Links:

<https://www.amazon.com/Shadows-Way-Barbara-Frances-ebook/dp/B07FZ895H1>

<https://www.barnesandnoble.com/w/shadows-way-barbara-frances/1128577690?ean=9781944071417>

<https://www.indiebound.org/book/9781944071417>

<http://shadowsway.com>

<http://positive-imaging.com>

<http://billspositivebooks.com>

Media Contact

Barbara Frances

barbarafrances@bookbuzzr.net

Source : Barbara Frances

See on IssueWire : <https://www.issuewire.com/author-barbara-frances-promotes-her-southern-gothic-fiction-novel-shadows-way-1635868473033540>

