New York City, Dec 31, 1969 (IssueWire.com) - The super producer Bumpy Johnson has gifted his audience a song with a killer hook and magnificent beats. His track 'Nemesis' is a tsunami of awesomeness and mind captivating in all aspects. He has fused a quickly addictive soundscape with engaging vocal delivery and thoughtfully written words. The track strongly rides over the musicality and Bumpy's artistry. It is addictively insane, and the ingredients are bursting out from the very beginning along with a smooth vocal presence of the creator. Underneath all of these moments, the dancelike stylish beats maintain the energizing pace, set up by the opening moments, which feels quite fresh in terms of presentation and structure.

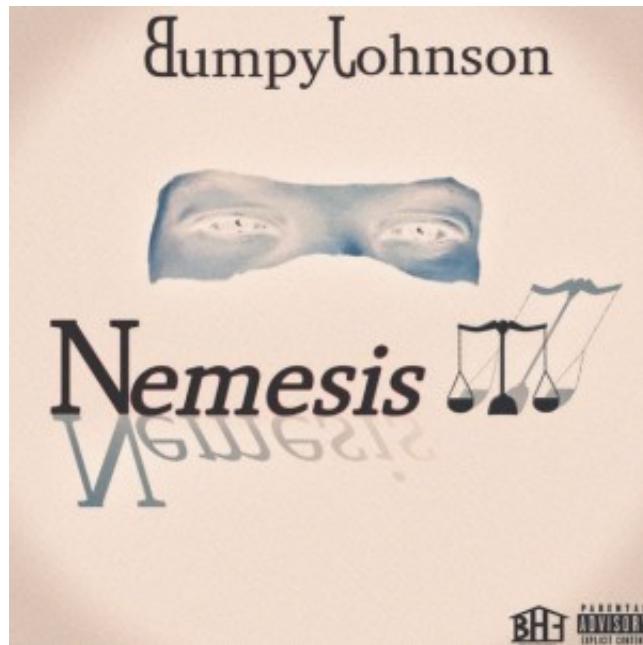

It is a track that you just can't help but groove to. That initial hook sets up the track perfectly, and each appearance of it makes the track even more exciting. Once the hook gets settled into your mind, it will be hard to take it out. The track doesn't overdo anything, yet quite effectively attracts the attention of the audience. Bumpy's voice does wonder for the track and the intensity of the structural development spreads out the magic with ease. The multi-layered rap verses help the artist to create the track's dynamic attitude and add further intensity so that the track can hit the audience's minds with a harder and long-lasting impact.

As the track progresses, it envelops the audience more and more with its creativity. The second half offers up those classic vibes, which brings out the character of the track that feels refreshing and unique. The contrast between the various elements gives an exciting and dynamic feel to the track, which is very well-supported by the expressive vocal performance of Bumpy.
