Permanent Residence Permit is the status of a Permanent Resident of Canada allowing foreigners to live, work, study, and conduct any other legitimate activities in Canada without having Canadian citizenship.

Permanent resident status (Permanent Residence) has a validity period; the holder of this status is obliged to extend this status each time it expires. The Permanent Resident has the right to reside in Canada throughout his life, but he is required to stay in Canada for a total of 2 years from each subsequent five years. If this condition is violated, the Permanent Resident risks losing their status.

A permanent resident of Canada (Permanent of Resident) has almost the same rights and obligations as citizens of Canada. The holder of this status has the right to free movement throughout Canada, have a residence anywhere in Canada, he/she has the right to legal guarantees and procedure, the right to education, the right to work in any private enterprises, and the right to work in federal or provincial institutions (excluding some posts). Moreover, the holder of the Permanent Residence status can obtain permission to serve in CAF (Canadian Armed Forces - Canadian Armed Forces) through a special security commission.
