New York City, Oct 11, 2019 (Issuewire.com) - Celebrating International Day of the Girl on October 11 and in partnership with VOW to End Child Marriage, Frank Darling is launching a collection of stackable diamond bands and donating 100% of profits to VOW to help end child marriage until November 29, 2019.

“Love is given, not taken. As a modern engagement and wedding ring brand, we feel passionately that marriage is a joint decision. When we first discovered VOW, we were shocked to learn that millions of girls’ futures are being swept away by child marriage every year. We’re going to change this, together. Join us and help these girls reach their full potential.” Kegan Fisher, Co-Founder & CEO

Each year, 12 million girls across the world are married under the age of 18 — some as young as 8. Now through November 29, 2019, Frank Darling will donate 100% of the profits from the VOW collection to help end child marriage. Every dollar raised goes to support local organizations that are standing up for girls’ rights and preventing child marriage in Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Caribbean.

By purchasing the VOW bands, people can help create a world where girls choose if, when and whom to marry.

Starting at $140, the VOW collection features four stackable bands. Playful, brazen, serious. and creative — each ring makes its own statement, together they form an unbreakable strength. Made from 100% recycled metals and set with sustainably lab-grown diamonds, each ring is made by hand in New York City.
