Professionally, he serves as the Medical Director of Pain Therapy Associates in Schaumburg, Illinois. “Your pain can be most effectively treated by pain management doctors who take a more holistic, whole-patient approach to care. At Pain Therapy Associates (PTA), we don’t limit pain care to only a few proven treatment types. That’s because we know that every patient is unique and two people with the same problem, condition or diagnosis will respond differently to different therapies. Instead, we use the best treatments from all over the world and from many different medical disciplines.” as stated on the practice’s website.

With a holistic, whole-patient approach to care, Dr. Dabah believes that chronic pain is a disease no different than hypertension or diabetes and that with time, commitment, and partnership with his patients, they will take back control of their lives and overcome their chronic pain. He is also the medical director for transcranial magnetic stimulation, which is a noninvasive procedure that uses magnetic fields to stimulate nerve cells in the brain to improve symptoms of depression.

After earning his medical degree from Wayne State University School of Medicine, he went on to complete his residency in anesthesiology at the University of Chicago, followed by his fellowship in pain medicine at the University of California, San Francisco.

Dual board-certified by the American Board of Anesthesiology and the American Academy of Pain Management, Dr. Dabah is a member of several professional organizations, including the American Society of Anesthesiologists, the American Society of Regional Anesthesia & Pain Medicine, the American Academy of Pain Medicine, the International Association for the Study of Pain, and the North American Neuromodulation Society.
