Celtic Realty, Dunedin's premier full-service boutique real estate brokerage welcomes new business partner Jennifer Henius, 2nd generation Realtor®. Together this mother-daughter powerhouse team will continue a tradition of delivering excellence in personalized customer service in Dunedin and the surrounding communities.

"Experience the Celtic Difference!"

Dunedin, Jan 7, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - Celtic Realty, an independent and family-owned boutique real estate brokerage in Dunedin, Florida is deepening its roots and expanding its reach in the New Year.

Founder and Broker Patricia Harris is being joined by her daughter Jennifer Henius, as a new business partner and real estate advisor. This mother-daughter duo shares a passion for serving others in their communities and each has a long history of dedicated public service.

Patricia shares she is thrilled to work with her daughter in this new capacity. "Jennifer brings a fresh perspective, new energy and innovative business ideas-it's great! She also shares in my values of honesty and integrity, which are the cornerstone of our business. We live, work and play here, our business reputation is our number one currency.”

Patricia is a well-known seasoned real estate veteran with more than 30 years in the industry and deep roots in serving communities across Pinellas County and in the city of Dunedin. Patricia established Celtic Realty in Dunedin paying tribute to her Celtic roots and her love for Dunedin’s charming Celtic community and culture. Under Patricia’s leadership, Celtic Realty has grown into a successful client referral based business from satisfied customers. She has helped generations of local families meet their real estate goals.

Jennifer, a second-generation Realtor® has a background in healthcare leadership in the Veteran community. Jennifer will leverage her skills and experience in project management, information technology, effective negotiating, and strategic communications and marketing to Celtic Realty for a seamless transition.

As a former military spouse, and a career civil servant with several moves under her belt, Jennifer knows what it's like to relocate. Buying and selling houses of her own - Jennifer also has a good appreciation for her client's journey from personal experience.

Jennifer recently relocated back to the area from out of state and is excited about her new business venture. “It feels really good to be back home and embraced into the small business community. I inherited exposure to the real estate profession over the years from an expert insider and trusted advisor. I learned long ago that this business is a lot more than getting a listing or closing an escrow. I believe the real estate business is still very much a relationship business. Helping people find their dream home or make their next big life change is what drives us every day. I could not be more proud to work alongside my mom and mentor as Celtic Realty’s new business partner and continue serving my community.”
