

Trudy Johnson Had To Deal With a New Culture and Surroundings at a Very Young Age

This Press Release is written to inform the readers that Trudy Johnson had to deal with a new culture and surroundings at a very young age.

Winnipeg, Dec 25, 2019 (IssueWire.com) - Right from a very young age, Trudy Johnson used to participate in a lot of community functions that have been very instrumental in her wanting to be an educator. Trudy served a few public schools as a teacher for 7 long years and eventually decided to move to real estate sales. As a child, she had to deal with a new culture and surroundings at a very young age and that helped cultivate creativity in her.

Talking of her education, Trudy has a Bachelor of Arts degree and even managed to qualify for the Honors program back then. Being in the domain of education for a long time helped Trudy learn many approaches to dealing with minds that are open to new things and that particular skill helped her work in the real estate field efficiently.

Trudy Johnson is also on the agent roster in Winnipeg for the military and totally enjoys working with these people as they look towards a realtor for a lot of work.

About Trudy Johnson

Trudy Johnson is a licensed realtor in Winnipeg who grew up on a farm in western Manitoba. She has received higher education from the University of Winnipeg, McAuley Collegiate, and Brandon University. She has a Bachelor of Arts degree in Teacher Training and History/Political Science.

As far as her personal life is concerned, her younger brother runs a huge business in Whitehorse while her elder brother used to own a trucking company where he transported cars to dealerships across Canada. Her grandparents were hardworking and courageous immigrants from the UK. She was raised on a farm in western Manitoba and learned a lot of business skills at a very young age.

Media Contact

Trudy Johnson - Winnipeg - Manitoba

randyasmith@dayrep.com

Source : Trudy Johnson

See on IssueWire

