

Scott George joins USCHAG as Chief Executive Officer

USCHAG is a portfolio company focused on helping people live better lives

Birmingham, Feb 27, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - Scott George has been announced as the newest executive to join the U.S. Consumer Healthcare Advocacy Group team. With crucial product launches scheduled for the first half of the year, having strong leadership in place is crucial to the organization's hyper-growth. Scott is an international award-winning executive encompassing a diverse background in both public and private sectors with a passion for startups and their disruptive nature. As an engaging and insightful leader, he has built a strong record formulating and directing strategic international sales, business development & marketing initiatives in highly competitive environments.

Says USCHAG Chairman, Nathan Owens: Scott's entrepreneurial background is a perfect fit to lead this portfolio company into its next growth phase." It is expected that George will play a key role in USCHAG's upcoming launch of HM2, it's Healthcare Solution. Owens explains, "As we continue to blitz scale, our concepts in development will benefit from the experience Scott has acquired in his many successful endeavours over the years."

USCHAG offers multiple solutions to every day, long-standing, ingrained societal problems that affect everyone. When most have accepted these problems as having no alternative option and insurmountable to solve, we use a combination of multiple data points, amazing people and the latest technology to solve them on a large scale. From this data, we develop products and services that allow consumers to operate in a new world where they have the knowledge, information and support to truly live life on their terms.

Through over a decade of research and development, U.S. Consumer Healthcare Advocacy Group (USCHAG) was able to build a consortium of professionals from all areas of the healthcare industry. With the consumers best interest in mind at all times, group advocates will ensure top-quality care for its members. George states, "Being able to lead a disruptive organization into its next phase of growth is both exciting and mind-blowing. When I began to understand the magnitude of what USCHAG is doing for consumers and the capabilities of what quantum computing can do with data for the good of humanity, I couldn't wait to get started."
