

Hands off tech - Helping schools deal with the Coronavirus

The challenge of keeping schools and parents connected safely and effectively

North Yorkshire, Mar 16, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - Life Ninja say “Hands off”. With the real prospect of school closures there is going to be a huge need to maintain school to parent communications, but with the Coronavirus potentially being transmitted through touch schools sending leaflets and letters home is not advisable. Life Ninja have produced the cutting edge Message Ninja app which allows full communication via news, events, chat and bookings - which can be used for scheduling remote meetings. CTO Tom Bailey added 'Using our intuitive self-service approach, schools can be set up in a matter of minutes without the need for anyone to be physically present. Also, our novel authentication system allows a school to register on the platform and guide parents through the app installation with the click of a button'.

Given schools are likely to need to get a communication solution in place quickly, Life Ninja believe their self-service and automatic registration approach is the best option for schools. MD Trevor Wills added 'The feedback we've had from schools has been excellent, they have especially liked the quick setup that only requires at most a short phone call from one of our team.'

Schools can find out more about the Message Ninja here.

Media Contact

Life Ninja Education Ltd

contact@lifeninjanet

Studio 109, 109B Marton Rd, Middlesbrough TS1 2DU

Source : Life Ninja Education Ltd

See on IssueWire