New York City, Mar 3, 2020 (IssueWire.com) - Lesley is a well-versed registered nurse who is retired from practice and currently residing in Burnaby, British Columbia, Canada. During her active years on the job, she specialized in pediatrics, ensuring an impeccable degree of patient satisfaction in all facets of her practice.

In the early days of her academic career, Lesley earned her nursing diploma from Mount Royal College in Calgary, Canada in 1973. Upon embarking on her professional journey, she upheld a steadfast commitment to the ethical and professional standards of her work. Hence, she feels that her success is attributable to her love for her profession.

A registered nurse (RN) is a nurse who has graduated from a nursing program and met the requirements outlined by a country, state, province or similar licensing body to obtain a nursing license. RNs fulfill a variety of job duties. In addition to their primary role in treating and caring for patients, their responsibilities also include educating patients and the public about a variety of medical conditions, as well as providing emotional support and advice to the families of their patients. Other RN job functions include leadership, research, performing diagnostic tests and analyzing results, operating medical equipment, administering medications, recording patients' symptoms and medical histories, and assisting with patient rehabilitation and follow-up.
