For a limited time, Launchnova, a Dallas/Fort Worth based web and software development company is offering a 50% discount to small businesses affected by COVID-19. In an interview with Launchnova co-founder Daniel White, he said this, "We understand more than most that these small businesses like ours are having an extremely hard time right now. For a lot of us, going out and finding a job simply isn't an option. We know that having an online presence is absolutely essential to being able to rebuild, stay in business, or grow at all. We are reaching out to local businesses offering our services at half their normal rate until things normalize and people are back to work".
