

Legendary Icons Captured on Film by Eagle Eye Evertis S. Wright

Eagle Eye Vert Wright makes movie magic with two legendary icons Mr. Hawthorne James and Ms. Cynda Williams, in “Why Me”.

Rahway, Apr 7, 2020 (IssueWire.com) - Evertis S. Wright, better known as Vert Wright, has filmed one of the most dramatic mental illness film scenes with actors Hawthorne James, Cynda Williams, and child star Shania Brown. Some call him Eagle Eye Vert Wright because of his ability to perfectly capture angles and quickly set appropriate lighting on a film set.

As the Director of Photography, he has worked along with Former Champion and Director Mr. Robert D. Parham. In a calm monotone voice, he carefully gives out directions to the lighting and sound crews with ease and skill, which they follow without flaw. Looking into the lens he hones in on the perfect moment in the frame to capture the attention and gaze of the audience. At this point, he turns to Mr. Parham with a look of satisfaction. With an amazing eagle eye, he captures the essence and character performance of Hawthorne James, as he says to Shania Brown who plays Crystal "You are always loved". He emphasizes deeply with that monumental moment of the display of a father's love for his bipolar child which brings one to tears.

To add to his level of expertise, Eagle Eye Vert Wright was able to film this full-featured film within 7 days. Yes, it may seem unimaginable that all of this can occur in that short amount of time, but it is a true fact. Screenwriter, Film Producer, CEO of Vali Brown Productions, honor roll student, prodigy child Shania Brown is the creator and writer of the movie entitled "Why Me". Directed by Robert D. Parham, Executive Producer Earlena Brown, Producer Hawthorne James, Producer Cynda Williams, and Associate Producer Yolanda McIntosh was very instrumental in making it possible.

Eagle Eye Vert Wright is a perfectionist and always arrives prepared as if he's on a Hollywood production set. He has learned so much about film over the years. He attended San Francisco State University, where he received his B.A. in Theater Arts. Eagle Eye Vert Wright is here to stay and his work speaks volumes on screen.
