The band American Maid has mesmerized the audience with the immaculate execution. The songs from their new EP 'Remember You' are sheer artistic brilliance.

Asheville, Apr 8, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - The band American Maid started as a mere touring band that performed locally before shifting base Asheville NC. They have created quite a rage among fans with the songs from their latest EP 'Remember You'. The band which is more into dishing out patriotic and anthem numbers has come up with the songs 'Burn', 'Automatic', 'She's Gone' and 'Dragging You Below' from their latest playlist. The band used to start the proceeding in various shows like in the rock fests and motorcycle rallies. Brandon Mills happens to be the producer of the band who earlier has been a part of the band Decyfer Down. In drums, they have Shane Brown, with the lead vocalist and the base being taken care of by Kimberley White and Danny McQueen respectively. They are gearing up to come up with more unique and exciting tunes.

The song from the EP 'Remember You' by the band American Maid speaks about the excruciating grief of losing someone close to your heart. With the recent outbreak of COVID-19 that is posing a threat to humanity, they urged people to have faith in almighty and come together in the trying times. Through the exquisite song, they have heaped praises and shown respect to the 'Essential Workers'. The armed forces in the country are playing a crucial role and the commendable actions find a place in their songs. The songs are rejuvenating with a flabbergasting groove. The performance in the song is stunning. You can listen to the tracks from the EP on major trending platforms like YouTube.
