Chennai, May 20, 2020 (IssueWire.com) - Dan Emil Joshua is a Music Producer and a Gospel Artist from Chennai, India. His introduction to the world of music was sown by the motivation of his parents. His family was not into music, but his parents were interested to make him learn. The main purpose he learnt music was to play in their Church. His interest was only on singing until he started to learn music. Then he started learning music from his cousin. Later, he involved himself in learning more music lessons. At first, He learnt basic keyboard playing from his cousin and he himself improved his playing. Then he moved into his childhood passion for learning Guitar. He started working out and learning guitar for himself. It was hard at first to learn a new instrument for himself without any guidance. Gradually he started improving his guitar playing from the music theories which he learned from the keyboard. At first, his interest was only on live playing but the interest of music producing was kindled by visiting a Recording Studio of his Dad's friend. He and his brother started working out for learning Digital Audio Workstation and Recording Process for themselves. Hardly it was two long years for them to understand the overall concepts of producing. They started learning programming, mixing and other essentials of music production for themselves. They themselves made available of their music on digital platforms. Today, he has achieved a commendable position in the music world. His achievements don't come overnight, it was because of his hard work, the time he made for learning music and some sacrifices to deliver some sensational hits.
