Austin, May 24, 2020 (Issuewire.com) -

Stockwinners notes a sharp increase in popularity of its research platform. The stock and option advisory service has been offering winnings stock and option research since 1998. The recent pandemic and stay-home orders has created a new generation of traders and investors. “The increase in our site traffic rivals the traffic that we saw following the September 11th, 2001 attacks and Financial Crisis of 2008," said company spokeswoman Melody Sed. "During market uncertainty and volatility, traders feel they want some new trading ideas, and they visit Stockwinners. Our Market Radar and blog has seen the largest number of visitors," she added. "Market Radar offers real time news and information including earnings reports, its given for this page to see additional traffic," she added.

Stockwinners blog has recently featured stocks of some of the companies that saw their shares make sharp moves. The blog correctly predicted the bankruptcy filings of JC Penney's, Hertz Car Rental, and Stage Stores. In December, the blog warned its readers of an upcoming market correction. The prediction was based on declining truck sales and subsequent sell off in transport sector.

The blog recently featured three stocks that have since moved sharply higher. Immunomedics was featured based on its cancer drug. At the time of the story, Immunomedics was trading at $18, shares last traded at $35. Inovio (INO) was featured due to its possible COVID-19 vaccine. Shares have moved up 30% since it was featured in the blog. The real winner in Stockwinners blogs has been Moderna, Inc. (MRNA). Shares of this company were later moved higher after Dr. Fauci named the company's COVID-19 vaccine as one of the most promising vaccines for the current pandemic. Shares were featured at $50 and since then they have reached a high of $94.

Every trading day, Stockwinners sends two emails to its member. One email contains daily stock and option picks.
