

Four Dogs and Their Tales by Marcella Brooks

FOUR DOGS AND THEIR TALES

A brilliant read filled with imagination, connection and growth, author Marcella Bursey Brooks has crafted a wonderful story. There is a very good reason why so many people say that dogs are man's best friend. As Emily Dickinson once said, "Dogs are better than human beings because they know but do not tell. This sentiment is explored thoroughly, especially from the dog's point of view, in Four Dogs And Their Tales."

Monmouth County, Jun 11, 2020 (IssueWire.com) - A family-friendly, adventure-filled story that is informative, educational and a fun read for the young and young at heart!

Kissy and Kawdje are Tibetan Spaniels adopted into the same household. In time, they were introduced into the sport of Dog Agility which brought the dogs and their families together and the story is built around training for and competing in agility events.

In "Four Dogs and Their Tales", canine companions and their loving owners train with the goal of representing Team USA at the International Dog Agility Championships.

Becoming winning teams at the World Dog Agility Games held annually in Arizona and earning placements on The Top Ten list that would make them eligible to represent Team USA at the International Dog Agility Championships is put on the agenda.

Life rarely goes as expected, however: unplanned puppies, a wedding, and more alter everyone's plans.

The author hopes her book will not only delight readers but also draw attention to air travel conditions for animals. Frequent travel and love for their dogs inspire the families in her story to try to institute worldwide pet-friendly air travel conditions.

Marcella Bursey Brooks has always been an animal lover. She is a retired registered nurse and an accredited flower show judge. She currently lives in Arizona.
