We were well aware of how much a website revamp could cost, but what mattered more is the visitors' and clients' convenience - Jitu Bhaskar, the Co-founder of SemiDot Infotech.

“This time we specifically planned on the website to be much more user friendly, especially for visitors using mobile devices, to access our website. A substantial number of visits were coming from users using mobile devices, there were more than enough reasons to further perfecting both the web and the mobile site.” – As quoted by Harry, the Sales & Marketing Head of SemiDot Infotech.

“A refreshed design and brand language were what we aimed for, I think our new website will connect to our potential clients on many more levels than it used to. We have made the website highly informative for young entrepreneurs, and to business owners, who are seeking quality mobile app and website development solutions to take their business to the next level.” – Rohan Singh, CEO of SemiDot.
