Students who study here need to assimilate with the living conditions, plan their living expenses and their accommodation.

The local and private universities along with agencies organize marketing activities, exhibitions, and roadshows to connect with potential students. The close collaboration with universities enabled the 6-year-old agency to become the trusted advisor for the foreign students.

"Malaysia houses 477 private higher education institutions and 10 foreign university branch campuses. However, the Ministry of Home Affairs has only granted permission to 200 to recruit international students. The students mostly come from the Middle East and North Africa and SEC will strive to provide balanced graduates to the institutions" Mohanad said.
