

Walsall Businesswoman hits back at internet trolls during a facebook live

West Midlands, Jul 1, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - Walsall Businesswoman Charlie Battisson from C B Beautiful Group hits back at internet trolls by showing her follower's several steps on how to beat internet bullies.

A Local Businesswoman has stunned Facebook followers by producing a clip of a live trolling episode that gained over 7 thousand views within the first hour. Charlie Battisson, the founder of C B Beautiful Group a successful clinic/academy and cosmetics brand allowed the public to see the full extent of her trolling during a Facebook live.

The unfortunate events happened after the recent and victorious launch of her new supplement TanTastic 'colour me happy' a capsule that makes you tan faster. Charlie commented on her social media live "After being trolled for a week, I have woken up to another night of cruel trolling. Facebook is not taking the comments down, so we are just going to deal with it. It has not upset me or affected my life journey if anything they are the worst troll in the world, they have gained me more likes which has helped my product range. Something needs to happen about trolling if I were not such a strong woman this could have killed me as they are telling me to kill myself! We should not listen to internet trolls; steps need to be taken to protect impressionable young girls that are killing themselves due to internet bullying."

To gain such a momentous audience, Charlie Battisson created a hashtag #somethingneedstohappenabouttrolling and posted it on her blog Getting Gorgeous. The Self-confessed entrepreneur is no stranger to blogging or trolling and prides herself on her honest reviews on the multi-billion pounds cosmetics industry. In a recent interview on Cannock Chase Radio FM, Charlie expressed her views on the difficulties of entrepreneurship because of internet trolling and how it can influence businesses and self-confidence.

"Trolling is an illness that manifests within bitter and jealous people that don't have the guts to say it in real life, I thank them for the publicity and hope they get well soon" ~ Charlie Battisson
