

Xena East Has Dished out Memorable Performances with Her Renditions in Breathtaking Pop and RnB

Xena East mastered the artistry of playing with various sounds in pop and R&B in her tracks. It is an impeccable performance by the Melbourne RnB Pop artist.

Melbourne, Dec 31, 1969 (Issuewire.com) - Some brilliant stuff is on the cards from the astounding singer Xena East who is also known as Stephanie Laurens. The independent artist has belted out tracks like the cover version for 'Tornado' that has been originally sung by Jay Chou, 'Only Girl', 'Officially Missing You', and also the cover version of 'Someone You Loved' that has originally been sung by Lewis Capaldi. These are some of the peaches of a track by the Melbourne RnB Pop artist. The singer par excellence is a dog psychologist and also someone hell-bent on raising her voice for the LGBT community. Being a transgender she finds it to be part of her responsibility to voice the concerns of the community. The Vietnamese singer is half Chinese and has an IQ of 185 and also holds a Ph.D. degree to her credit. The fans can check out her live singing by logging on to her Facebook profile.

In the vivacious number 'Tornado' magical melody is created by the prolific Xena East. In the track 'Only Girl', an uplifting realm is beautifully created by the singer. In the number 'Officially Missing You', there is fantastic sound design with a fascinating composition. In 'Someone You Loved', there is a soulful longing that is stunningly delivered.
