

Expand Your Horizons about the Iranian Cosmetic Surgery Industry through Dr. Saman Tahmasbi's Informative Instagram Hand

Tehran, Jul 10, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - Dr. Saman Tahmasbi, one of the top-ranked doctors of the Iranian Board of Plastic Surgery is expanding his career prospects and communication with his patients through the dynamic platform of Instagram. Since Instagram has become widely popular in not just Iran but across the world, many medical practitioners and specialists are also willing to use this social medium to present their services. Dr. Tahmasbi's introduction to Instagram will open the doors of his professional as well as personal success in life before an audience that includes patients and potential patients as well.

The requirement of medical education to be a board-certified plastic surgeon in Iran might be different from other countries. In some countries, after receiving the degree of doctor of medicine (MD) doctors can undergo a plastic surgery residency of five to six years. However, in Iran and some other medical schools of the U.S, after completion of the Doctor of Medicine degree (MD) which lasts for seven years; doctors must undergo general surgical residency training of four years and then can undergo plastic surgical residency of three years to be a board-certified plastic surgeon who is qualified to operate cosmetic surgeries based on the geographical location of the medical university the person has graduated from. This is considered valid and credible according to various scientific references. Although other people are claiming to be plastic surgeons, what explained earlier are the academic and scientific explanations of a plastic surgeon. Some doctors specialized in other fields of medicine may gain some cosmetic-related experiences and operate such surgeries but based on what mentioned earlier, their experience and knowledge are not sufficient enough to be called a plastic surgeon.

Iran ranks significantly high as a country where plastic surgery is thriving with many people opting for cosmetic surgeries. Unfortunately, doctors specialized in other fields and even people who are not certified in medicine operate cosmetic operations owing to the growing popularity among the mass. These 'medical groups' operate on a patient without mentioning the name of a surgeon and since due to claims and affordability, many people fall prey to this scam. Since these people lack sufficient knowledge in the field, many patients will have severe complications or may even pass away. Also, as there exists a lack of public awareness and insufficient legislation in this field, more and more uncertified people are entering uncertified plastic surgery.

According to Dr. Saman Tahmasbi, the key factor to success is to understand one's knack or interests before they graduate high school so that a planned career can be pursued. Moreover, he believes being interested and gifted in a certain field isn't enough to lead a person to success. Finding one's interest is a personal choice but to understand our real flairs, the help of society, family and our teachers is indispensable. He views competition and scoring the best points a challenge and he believes only by challenging our abilities in competition with garner credibility in the field. His years in school and college were filled with hard work and resilience that finally resulted in his success as a doctor.

As Iranian doctors are active on Instagram, Dr. Saman Tahmasbi believes if specialists give professional comments in other fields of medicine rather than their field of specialty, they are showing a lack of scientific and professional stability. To take care of this, he divides active people in the field of plastic surgery with Instagram accounts in two groups. The first group consists of those who are certified to do plastic surgery so their words can be considered credible and the second, who are not certified at all and just try to get people's attention by bombarding them with deceptive glamorous advertisements. The second group is really dangerous since they lead the society to a way to have unrealistic expectations from plastic surgeons and form unrealistic perspectives towards plastic surgery. The Iranian surgeon, through his accurate and functional Instagram campaign, is trying to provide information about the cosmetic surgery industry through realistic and updated information while retaining a personal touch by sharing special moments of his life so that his followers can find respite.
