“At Mountain View Chiropractic, we believe that you can make big changes in your health by focusing on the small steps. Our work in health and the community is inspired by the Butterfly Effect, a meteorological phenomenon discovered and coined by Edward Lorenz. If a butterfly is flapping its wings in Australia and has the potential to create a hurricane in the Gulf of Mexico; we believe that even one adjustment can help lead to better health and wellness. When our patients feel better, eat better, and heal better; they in turn can have further positive effects in our community at large” as stated on her website.
