India has given the world some of the best writers, engineers, scientists, doctors, and businessmen. It is no surprise that the CEO of one of the world's biggest companies, i.e. Google is an Indian. Besides, it is a widespread belief that Indians have a knack for trade and business. With the COVID-19 Pandemic restricting our access to international trade, the need to have a more self-sufficient economy has become urgent and unavoidable. We need more and more entrepreneurs in new-age India if we are to sustain ourselves in the future.

Serial entrepreneurs are changing the face of the world. A serial entrepreneur is an individual who is constantly coming up with new and innovative ideas and starting various business ventures. Given the current circumstances, serial entrepreneurship will go a long way in giving the Indian business space a much-needed boost. Ruby Zubeen Nallaseth is one of the most well-known and influential serial entrepreneurs of the country.

An ambitious woman from the metropolitan city of Mumbai, Ruby Zubeen Nallaseth is the Director of Ambico Ice Factory and Meherzeen Ice & Cold Storage.
