Diego was born near Milan (Italy), from a middle-class family. He embodies many of an entrepreneur's characteristics, and it's obvious he was born to lead. Diego Granese identifies with this term because he gave life and brought multiple businesses to greatness. He has started six companies in total so far, four of which are still an ongoing success.

First, he created DDM Sport, a small but innovative gym ("DDM Sport" 2012). Once the company took off and began to grow, Diego Granese realized his potential and his passion for entrepreneurship. After selling his first business and making enough money, he decided to participate with Fitup Europe to create a big chain of fitness centers mutually with other partners.

After several successes, he decided in 2018 to create his first Holding, which deals with investments in startups and companies. Today, Diego Granese owns many successful companies and brands and is developing his own branding.

His Dubai company, on the other hand, offers international business consulting services, international tax planning, company incorporation in the United Arab Emirates and aid to obtain residence permits in the UAE.

Diego is today a recognized and famous international business expert, with technical skills concerning marketing and business management. He is also an active volunteer and periodically donates blood for charity.

Diego Granese is also a public figure in Italy; he was engaged with a famous Italian model and a Venezuelan showgirl.
