

Jeffrey C. Davis, MD, an Orthopaedic Surgeon with Andrews Sports Medicine & Orthopaedic Center

Get to know Orthopaedic Surgeon Dr. Jeffrey C. Davis, who serves patients in Birmingham, Alabama.

New York City, Aug 31, 2020 (IssueWire.com) - Dr. Davis is a board-certified orthopaedic surgeon who has been practicing at Andrews Sports Medicine & Orthopaedic Center in Birmingham, Alabama since 1995. He has an interest in minimizing exposures for joint replacement and performing procedures limiting bone removal, particularly for younger patients. He has developed the largest hip resurfacing practice and has the most experience of any surgeon in the region, performing more than 500+ hip resurfacing procedures since 2008. The results to date show high levels of satisfaction and patients returning to active lifestyles. The failure rate has been <1% in hip resurfacing over the nine years.

A true professional, Dr. Davis is one of the first surgeons in Birmingham to utilize Stryker's Mako System, utilizing highly-advanced robotic-arm assisted technology to personalize total knee, partial knee, and total hip replacement procedures to each patient.

He has training in anterior hip approaches, along with limited incision posterior approaches for hip replacements. He also performs custom, partial knee replacements, and shoulder resurfacing with a technology called Arthrosurface.

Recognized as a premier surgeon who can treat many problems of the shoulder, elbow, wrist, knee and ankle arthroscopically, Dr. Davis has vast experience with surgical and non-operative treatment for many orthopaedic conditions. These include: shoulder (rotator cuff, instability, labral tears, arthritis, fractures), elbow (fractures, tendinitis, cubital tunnel, loose bodies), wrist (fractures, carpal tunnel, tendinitis), hip (fractures, arthritis, revision surgery), knee (fractures, arthritis, ligament tears, cartilage tears, OCD lesions, tendon injuries) and ankle (fractures, Achilles tendon).

Born in Decatur, Dr. Davis and his family moved to Atlanta when he was 7 years old. He attended Georgia Tech, playing football for 3 years before a knee injury ended his collegiate athletic career. Following undergraduate graduation, he received an Air Force scholarship for medical school at the Medical College of Georgia, graduating with his medical degree in 1986. His residency in orthopaedic surgery was performed at the well-known and respected Campbell Clinic in Memphis, Tennessee. Following the completion of his training, Dr. Davis served in the Air Force as an orthopaedic surgeon. During his military service, he achieved the rank of Major and received an achievement medal.

With years of experience in his field, the doctor is board-certified in orthopaedic surgery by the American Board of Orthopaedic Surgery (ABOS). The ABOS is an organization with the goal of establishing educational and professional standards for orthopaedic residents and surgeons as well as evaluating the qualifications and competence of orthopaedic surgeons.

Treating each patient with respect and providing complete attention to every individual, Dr. Davis is diligent with providing the patient information to assist them with making an informed decision while understanding the treatment chosen with associated potential risks. He is conservative with treatment options and tailors the treatment plan to each patient.

Orthopaedic surgery is the branch of surgery concerned with conditions involving the musculoskeletal system. Orthopaedic surgeons use both surgical and non-surgical means to treat musculoskeletal trauma, spine diseases, sports injuries, degenerative diseases, infections, tumors, and congenital disorders.

Happily married, Dr. Davis and his wife, Sheri, have five children. They enjoy traveling and spending time with their family. Most importantly, they cherish their spiritual relationship. He enjoys spending time with their two oldest boys skiing, playing golf, going to the lake, and attending football games. He also enjoys time with their younger daughters by taking them horseback riding and providing a special date with dad with each daughter.

Previously, Dr. Davis served as team physician for both Briarwood Christian School and Spain Park High School. He and his wife are members of The Church of the Highlands and love the fellowship their church provides for their family. His faith is very important to him because it is the spiritual guide for his life and practice.
