NEW RELEASE

The PFY EagleEye Wifi HDMI Transmitter was designed so that you could utilize your smartphone and tablet as a portable wireless monitor for your camera. It allows for up to four devices to connect simultaneously with an approximate latency of 100ms.

EagleEye transmits Video and Audio Signal to your smartphone or tablet.

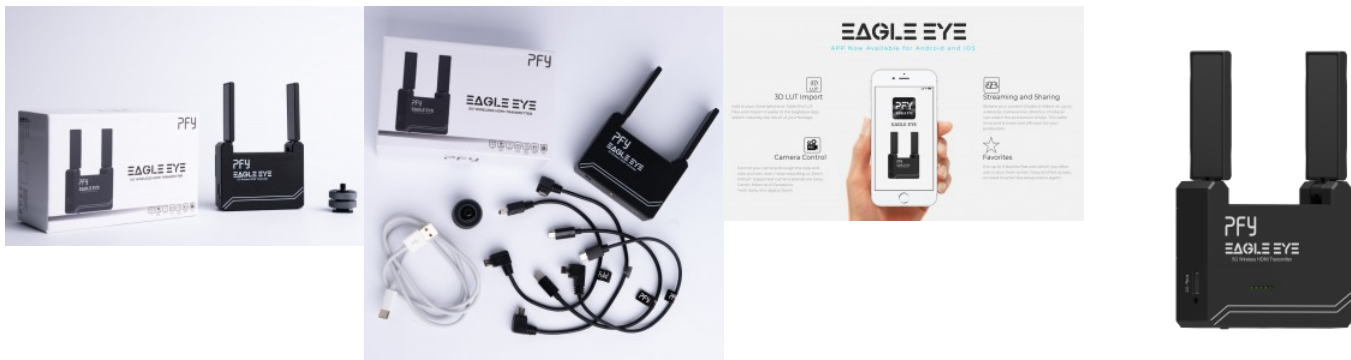

The app not only lets you monitor the image, but you can also bring up monitoring assist aids such as false color, focus peaking, zebras, etc. There is also the ability to use 3D Luts by importing it to the App. Watch this video.

EagleEye allows you to control your Camera through the App. You have the ability to start-stop recording over HDMI, Zoom IN/OUT as long as your camera supports that.

Apparently, the app also allows you to take pictures or record the video signal directly on your phone so you can share it directly to social media platforms in a quality of up to 1080p 60Hz.

The EagleEye is now available to purchase for \$149 USD. This is $100 USD cheaper than other transmitters on the market. This arguably makes the EagleEyes the most cost-effective HDMI video streaming solution on the market.

EagleEye is now available at www.pfy-tech.com, www.pilotfly.de as well as at B&H.
