How to determine the correct hemp oil dosage for pets using Hempstrax pet calculator

Los Angeles, Sep 14, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - Hempstrax announces addition of a pet calculator to ensure correct hemp oil dosage for pets

Hempstrax has launched a pet calculator on their website. Hemp oil dosage is really important especially when it comes to our pets. Pets do not have the ability to tell us how they are feeling, so its important to get their dosage right.

Hemp oil has proven to be a really beneficial supplement for dogs suffering from a range of ailments. Many dogs and cats experience pain and arthritis as they age. Hemp oil can be a game-changer for increasing mobility and reducing inflammation.

‘We have amazing success stories’, says Jason Jones, owner of Hempstrax and their storefront OC Wellness Solutions located in Orange County, California. ‘We have so many customers come in to our store in distress because their pet is not doing well. Many customers come back to personally thank us as their pet has a new lease on life.’

Hemp oil works to reduce inflammation as it works on the Endocannabinoid System. Our four-legged friends have an Endocannabinoid System just like we do and when we age we can benefit from a supplement that helps boost the supply to the EC1 and EC2 receptors present in our bodies. The ECS is responsible for regulating many systems within the body as well as delivering essential hormones that are responsible for healing and a sense of well being.

Hempstrax makes hemp oil pet tinctures in Full Spectrum, Broad Spectrum and Isolate. They are available in 500mg, 1,000mg & 2,000mg. They are made with Organic MCT Oil and Hemp Distillate or Isolate. They are unflavored and can be added to pets food or administered directly under the tongue.

Hempstrax makes a line of Pet Treats precisely dosed with Broad Spectrum Distillate. To see the complete range please click here.
