

Forbes India and GMI Honours Entrepreneurs in the Times of Crisis

Mumbai, Oct 15, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - 2020 has been a year of revolution as the COVID-19 pandemic swept across the globe upending all types of business and personal plans. Startups have been highly impacted, but many have found ways to navigate these changes, relying on the power of their people. In such times, Great Manager Institute and Forbes India have honoured entrepreneurs as part of their list of Top 100 Great People Managers in the country.

Great Manager Institute, known for its widely accepted manager certification program using a coach and e-learning modules, along with its partner Forbes India, known worldwide for its well-evaluated lists, released a list of India's top 100 Great People Managers, out of which there has been a number of entrepreneurs of young startups. The leaders honoured through this list have shown exceptional behavioural qualities needed in a great people manager, focused on behavioural areas of Connect, Develop, and Inspire; the companies informed in a statement.

Some of the startup CEOs in the list include Trishneet Arora of TAC Security, who was also a Forbes Asia Under 30 honoree in 2018, Ravi Gupta, founder of Safexpay, a leading white-labelled payment gateway solution provider, Raj Mallela, founder of SATRA Infrastructure Management Services, Mukesh Sharma, founder of QA Infotech and also a two-time winner of this honour, Pavan Allena, founder of Metamorphosis eduSchool, Ankit Aggarwal, founder of Dare2Compete and Girish Kundlani, founder of Big Rattle Technologies. Each of these startups and their founders have made it to this list because of their focus on people management, as is also demonstrated during the current times of crisis.

“The Awards honouring these special leaders shall be held virtually on the 13th of November. We shall be honouring these entrepreneurs as well as other great people managers in the list. We have also opened up the registrations for this year and we invite all entrepreneurs leading companies of all shapes and sizes to go through this study, and in the process learn more about their style as a people manager”, said Shivangi Shinari about the Great People Manager Awards 2020 and the opening of registrations for Great People Manager Study 2021.
