

Mumba Sauce seeks to set itself apart from the competition

Robert Foye Jr

Washington, D.C, Oct 19, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - Mumba Sauce was reinvented in Washington DC in 2016 by Robert Foye Jr. He had the inspiration to transform the beloved sauce condiment featured in the DC, Maryland and Virginia areas. With improved ingredients and plans to incorporate Organic and Plant-based, this is a product taking DC by storm. Robert Foye Jr seeks to created integrity for the condiment by ensuring it's flavors do not vary like most of the knock offs that can be found around the city in shady carry out establishments. The sauce can be bought on its website www.mumbasauce.com and Robert Foye Jr looks to help other startups in the area by creating websites so that products across the DMV area can reach people who need support to follow their dreams.

Mumba Sauce does look for community support for its first location in Cleveland Ohio at 825 Superior Ave Downtown Cleveland. Covid-19 has been tough for the Brand but acquiring shelf's, racks and cashier equipment is all that stands in the way of Mumba Sauce taking off and becoming successful. Robert Foye Jr seeks 200 vendors who have products ranging from Clothes, Makeups, Soaps, Face Masks, Customs and many more. The vendors must have a large inventory and pay a $300 per month price for the vending space. Inquiries and Donations and be viewed on Mumba Sauce Facebooks page <https://m.facebook.com/mymumbasauce/>.
