Bronx, Oct 30, 2020 (IssueWire.com) - Representing the golden age of American hip hop, established rapper Taino Tim is making a name for himself in the music streaming game after taking the underground hip hop scene in 2000 with his childhood crew. Advocating the voiceless and oppressed section of the society, the brilliant performer has presented the real picture of the society forming a strong bond with his audience. His latest collection consisting of thought-provoking numbers like 'Trust Issues', 'I'm A Liar', and 'Rig The Election' mocks the current socio-political aspect of the country through witty and meaningful lyrical illustrations.

Hailing from the Bronx, New York, the prolific and bold artist is an example of what social injustice and systematic oppression do to the minds of the youth of a generation as he was diagnosed with PTSD without serving in the military. Surviving the painful ordeal he devoted himself fully to the art of music-making that has helped him heal. Hoping to help others with his therapeutic soundscape, the gifted rapper imparts a positive vibe through his exuberant performance.
