

Sandor Poppinga Announces The Nature Documentary Film “Mergui” That Concerns Myanmar Is Now Available In The US

The German Independent filmmaker, who resides in Austria, wants to help the world know about Mergui Archipelago. The place is full of wonders, nature, and facing its own challenges.

New York City, Oct 8, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - Independent filmmaker, Sandor Poppinga, is proud to announce his science documentary film titled "Mergui." The film is about the Myeik Archipelago, a very remote area in the nation of Myanmar.

The movie exhibits the natural beauty of the region, along with its wonders and issues. Viewers are taken on a fun and adventure journey as they explore the sea, villages, its people, and underwater life.

Mergui offers viewers an interesting perspective of a region representing some of the best natural beauty and wonders of the world. It is a diverse tribute to Myanmar's country and a realistic depiction of its natural wonders and problems: "an ecological cautionary tale."

The film is on Amazon Prime. In the US, it is available for free on tubi.tv and other streaming channels.

For more information, please, visit the website at <http://mergui.co>.

Several things make Mergui a film that everyone should see. The filmmakers made a very successful attempt to document life in this place and offer a story from an angle never before seen on screen.

There is also the music by Jao Silvestre, which rhymes with the images, thereby elevating the storytelling values. Viewers will also enjoy Sean Dalen's calming narration and the effect of the water footage, locals' activities, and the natural and untouched environment.

The documentary is content, helping to promote the works of an environmental scientist. It shows the challenges Mergui is facing to counter the effects of environmental degradation and global warming.

Mergui has received recognition from top international institutions. This includes the official selection for the Science Film Festival 2020, organized by the Goethe-Institute and is a celebration of science communication in Southeast Asia, South Asia, Africa, and the Middle East. The festival runs until Dec 20, 2020.

It also received Silver Trophy at the Deauville Green Awards and selection at the Saratov Sufferings Documentary Film Festival, Austrian Film Festival, and Italy Green Film Festival.

Media Contact

Sandor Poppinga

sandor.poppinga@gmx.at

Sandor Poppinga • Rain 56 • AT-6951 Lingenau • Austria

Source : Sandor Poppinga

See on IssueWire