

Blazer Barboza is one of the Best United States Business Rappers

Georgia, Nov 11, 2020 (IssueWire.com) - Hip hop artist and digital marketing manager, Blazer Barboza lists a countdown of the top United States business rappers who are taking entrepreneurship to a new degree. Hip hop entrepreneurship is crucial in any rapper's growth as more and more eminent artists are investing in external businesses like recording studios, stocks, etc.

Among some of the biggest names in the hip hop industry, Curtis James Jackson, widely known by his stage name 50 Cent has emerged as one of the most successful entrepreneurs, investors, and producers. From talent management ventures to investing in film production companies, his extensive legacy has paved the way for many others to follow suit. Drake has also found success as an entrepreneur with his record label OVO Sound and been an active figurehead in collaboration with Apple. His investments in production and gaming have also garnered him success and an eminent name as an entrepreneur hailing from the hip hop industry.

American rapper, producer, and businessman Master P is the founder of No Limit Records, a prominent record label running its legacy to date. He also invested in an online television market and his net worth was rendered as the third-richest in the scope of hip hop by Forbes back in 2009. Some other important names who have successfully laid their entrepreneurship careers include Wiz Khalifa, Meek Mill, Kanye West, Nas, and Blazer Barboza himself.

Blazer Barboza is an upcoming name in the scope of hip hop, rap, and entrepreneurship visions. He is emerging as an important name not just as a performer of hip hop but also his contribution to the field of business in music. He launched his social media platform, Veva Play in 2017 and his career has never turned back since then.
