Get to know Internist Dr. Chandresh Parmar, who serves patients in Concord, North Carolina.

New York City, Nov 17, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - Dr. Parmar is a well-versed internist specializing in primary care for adults. He is affiliated with Atrium Health Cabarrus, a regional 457-bed, not-for-profit hospital in Concord, North Carolina.

Committed to providing advanced, personalized medical care to the community, Atrium Health Cabarrus is a part of the largest healthcare system in the Carolinas and serves a five-county region. It is the only hospital in Cabarrus County, with a reputation for excellence built on advanced technology, medical staff talent, quality and compassionate care. Its mission is “to improve health, elevate hope and advance healing – for all.”

With a broad educational background, Dr. Parmar graduated with his Bachelor of Science degree in Biology from East Carolina University in 2002. He then went on to earn his Master of Business Administration degree from the same educational venue in 2003, followed by his medical degree from Saint George’s University School of Medicine in 2008.

After completing his residency in internal medicine at Mount Carmel Medical Center, he attained board certification in internal medicine through the American Board of Internal Medicine (ABIM). The ABIM is a physician-led, non-profit, independent evaluation organization driven by doctors who want to achieve higher standards for better care in a rapidly changing world.

Internal medicine is the medical specialty dealing with the prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of adult diseases. Physicians specializing in internal medicine are called internists. They manage and prevent common and complex diseases by providing comprehensive care and promoting overall well-being.
