

Rising Storm Training Academy Continues to Bring Positivity & Promise Despite a Scary & Unpredictable 2020

The Martial Arts Academy is Ending a Dreary 2020 Stronger Than Ever

Burlington, Dec 15, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - This has been a tough year for many small businesses. Yet despite the challenges posed by a tumultuous 2020, Rising Storm Training Academy is emerging bigger and stronger than ever. The elite martial arts academy has locations in Burlington and Woburn, and recently opened a new location in Dracut.

How is this growth possible during a phase of real uncertainty for most small businesses in the Commonwealth? Passion, grit, perseverance, and a commitment to innovation. Rising Storm's founder, decorated martial arts expert Sensei Nathan Porter, embodies all of these attributes. More than anything, his commitment to his students and the continuity of their training has remained paramount for Porter. He has gone above and beyond solely ensuring best practice safety measures in his facilities. He has pivoted, shifted, and made his academy more accessible than ever during the pandemic. By integrating offerings like online classes and socially-distant e-camps, where students can train and do homework, Porter has made accessing his academy possible.

Rising Storm is a dynamic school known for its teamwork-oriented environment and its commitment to the success of each student. The main pillars of the academy are:

- Have fun
- Develop character, leadership skills, and self-control
- Become more positive, balanced individuals

"These pillars are essential for students during this crazy year and this uncertain time," notes Porter. "We've worked hard to create an atmosphere where students learn to do more than kick and punch, they learn how to become the best most confident versions of themselves."

Rising Storm Training Academy's youth and adult programs incorporate elements of Kempo Karate, Brazilian Jiu Jitsu, Taekwondo, and Boxing.
