Situations that Are Considered As the Dental Emergencies

When it comes to urgent dental care, most people fail to get the wake-up call and end up in a terrible situation. Dr. Eros Chaves talks about the issues that require an immediate appointment with the dentist. He is the top-notch dental professional in Florida, USA.

He has got a DDS degree from the State University of Campinas in 1977 and later got a DMD degree from the University of Pittsburgh and School of Dental Medicine in 1999.

Tooth Fracture

It is one of the dental situations that require an immediate appointment with the dentist. There are so many situations that can make one tooth fall or displaced like encountering an accident, falling off a bike and horse, playing outdoor sports like basketball, etc.

These events are traumatic. If anything unpleasant happens to you during such events, you should make an appointment with your dentists with-in hours to get the injury checked. It will handle the situation at an appropriate time without causing much loss to you.

The other important thing one should keep in mind while participating in any sporty activity is wearing of mouth guard for the protection of the teeth. After all, they are crucial for you.

Oral Infections

They can be varied from minor to major. There is an infection called Ludwig's Angina. It occurs under the tongue. It is an emergency condition. It is because if it is not treated on time, the bacteria can travel from the cavity to pericardial tissue around the heart.

So, if you experience swelling around your jawline, difficulty in breathing and swallowing, don't ignore the signs. Go and get it checked by the emergency professional so that the situation can be prevented from becoming a serious issue.
